

The purpose of the project

The purpose of the project Let me tell you a story is to encourage students to read. The project aims to improve students' knowledge, as the knowledge acquired in teaching with the help of fairy tales and stories should be more permanent, and students should also understand the material more easily. We will develop critical thinking in students, the vocabulary of the mother tongue and also English should improve. The emphasis will be on cultural heritage, its preservation and transmission from generation to generation. School professionals will develop professionally and learn about new methods.

Julija Koleš, Nik Veler and Alja Pšeničnik, now seventh-graders, were gathered for the first exchange, which took place in the first month of December 2019 in Turkey and thus got the opportunity to get to know other cultures, school systems, good practice, new people, foreign words, other countries, cities and attractions.

Activities so far

So far, we have met partner countries as part of the project, arranged project corners, read fairy tales in morning care, after-school classes and during lessons. We have made a gift for the exchange and researched fairy tales once upon a time. We have also organized a book exhibition of what we once read and told stories with kamishibai support. We have invited parents and grandparents to think about their favourite fairy tales and to write it by hand. We have had a tea party with Mr Loic, drawn logos, talked about values with the help of the cube of values, prepared dramatizations and performances, surveyed reading habits, made a promotional calendar and this leaflet.
